DEMOGRAPHICS

Elk River, Minnesota is a community located at the intersection of Highways 10, 169, and 10, just 35 miles northwest of downtown Minneapolis. As part of the greater Twin Cities Metropolitan Area, Elk River blends small-town charm with big-city access, offering businesses the best of both worlds. The city welcomes over 250,000 annual visitors who come for its thriving downtown, recreational lakes and parks, the Sherburne County Fairgrounds, and year-round community events.

Elk River’s economy is anchored by industries that align with its strengths: advanced manufacturing, medical devices, energy, and data centers. As “The Light Industrial Hub of the Northwest Metro,” the city is home to more than 60 manufacturers and offers shovel-ready lots, workforce pipelines, and access to financial incentives. A designated “Energy City,” Elk River also supports energy-efficient and renewable technology projects, creating a unique platform for innovation. With two Fortune 50 companies already operating data centers here, Target and United Health Care, the city’s infrastructure and reliability continue to attract forward-thinking businesses.

Through its Economic Development Authority, Elk River offers hands-on support to help businesses expand, relocate, or start fresh. From streamlining approvals to connecting companies with funding programs, the city is invested in long-term business success.
